

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	4
INTRODUCTION	5
I. THE CITY AS THE WRITER'S OBJECT OF INTEREST	8
1.1 The city lives in its details – London: The Biography	9
1.2 The image of the city in modern British literature	11
Late Victorian repudiation	11
The gloomy modernist legacy	14
Urban dystopias	17
The postwar insecurity	29
Contemporary urban literary images	21
II. MARTIN AMIS –THE FEVER OF THE POSTMODERN	27
2.1 The urban mystery - Other People: A Mystery Story	27
The urban setting	28
Encountering others	29
Down and out in London	32
Political London	33
Urban hostility	35
2.2 The city's voices - Money: A Suicide Note	36
The commercial S/self	37
The urban S/self	39
The "Roaring Eighties"	43
Postmodern dystopia	44
2.3 The city's lines of force - London Fields	45
Are there any fields in London?	46
The illiterate, the ignorant and the knowing	48
Millennial London – the apocalyptic urban frenzy	50
2.4 The literary city - The Information	54
Yet another hero	54
The postmodern modernist	55
The urban voice	56
The languages London speaks	58
The urban pastoral	59
The urban American	61
Why is the city to be feared?	63

The postmodern alter egos	64
2.5 Martin Amis's narrative	66
Money – the narrative voice and the author as a character	67
London Fields – the theme of narrative authority	70
The authorship questioned	77
III. IAN McEWAN – FROM THE HAUNTED TO THE MORAL	80
3.1 The suburban nightmare - The Cement Garden	80
The urban wasteland	81
The happy nightmare	82
The painful awakening	85
3.2 Patriarchal delusion - The Comfort of Strangers	86
The sleepwalkers	86
The tourist siege	87
McEwan's tourists	88
The city's scapegoats	89
The city's snares	92
Beyond the maps	93
Whose comfort is it?	95
3.3. The dystopian city - The Child in Time	96
For the nation's welfare	98
The city in time	99
The dystopian urban vision	103
3.4 Urban morality - Amsterdam	104
The universal city	105
The city behind one's acts	106
The urban and the natural	110
The city of Amsterdam	112
Unconvincing ending or playful twist?	113
3.5. McEwan's narrative	114
The uninvolved narrator	115
The genre mixture	119
The narrative of moments	121
The narrative of dissolved totality	122
IV. THE LITERARY CITY'S PROSPECTS	125
The postmodern follow-up	125

Tempting suicidal tendencies	126
The (a)moral choice	128
Ironic hope or hopeful irony?	129

V. EPILOGUE	131
--------------------	-----

BIBLIOGRAPHY	132
---------------------	-----